What to expect and who should attend these IIMS events...

The IIMS runs these events for the benefit primarily of its members, although non members may participate too. You can pick up a valuable 5 CPD points by attending an IIMS organised event. We aim to keep the cost of attending our conferences and events reasonable and fair.

We hope that the content of each event will not only interest you, but enable you to learn something new to help you in your role as a marine surveyor. It also gives you the opportunity to network and share issues with other marine surveyors who are facing similar challenges and issues as you.

Who should attend the Small Craft Working Group (SCWG) Training Days?

Clearly from the title of the meeting, these events are aimed directly at small craft surveyors and that is reflected in the programme. The groups tend to be quite intimate. Sometimes we will invite a guest speaker to present on a particular topic. And it is not just all about marine surveying either. At some of the SCWG meetings we share business management information too. A small charge applies. Open to all members. We particularly draw your attention to the SCWG 'Super' day on Monday 5 October, which we hope will be something special. And it is deliberately back to back with the CA training day to allow small craft members to attend both.

Who should attend the Certifying Authority Training Days?

It is a requirement of all IIMS CA examiners to attend at least one of the two annual CA training days. We try to keep the training practical and topics such as heel tests and stability, tonnage surveys and MLC 2006 are usually on the programme somewhere! Other IIMS members who are not CA examiners may attend.

Who should attend the IIMS London Conference & AGM?

This prestigious event is open to all IIMS members and non members alike. The Institute comes together to deliver two days of thought provoking, high quality presentations. The Conference dinner takes place on the Monday evening. And the Institute's AGM takes place in the afternoon on 8 September.

The IIMS Australia Technical Workshop in June and IIMS UAE Conference in November are open to members and non members. The same applies to the 'Workboats and Surveyors' seminar at the Seawork Exhibition in June - open to all to attend.

We look forward to welcoming you to an IIMS event soon.

Please support your Institute's events in 2015.

Do you attend marine events?

If so, are you looking for marine seminar, event, exhibition or conference ideas?

The International Institute of Marine Surveying web site has a dedicated section entitled 'What's On'. Here you will find a wide selection of forthcoming marine event information with contact details that will appeal to all types of marine surveyors.
